

The Healing Voices Magazine

When you submit your work, you authorizing us (the Founders of the Healing Voices Magazine) to publish your work on the terms of this attached agreement.

The Healing Voices Magazine

The Healing Voices Magazine is an online publication by Catholic survivors of clergy abuse for the benefit of survivors of abuse and trauma as well as their families, friends and others who minister to them. Currently this publication is in blog, e- and print newsletter format, but formats may change.

Healing Voices publishes articles in keeping with editorial guidelines which are determined and, from time to time updated, by its Founders.

Accepting by Submission

By submitting your work to us, you are agreeing to the following terms for reuse.

Non-Exclusive Rights

You authorize us free of charge to produce, publish and distribute your work as part of the magazine on a non-exclusive basis only, but in perpetuity for all formats and/or languages in which Healing Voices magazine is now or may later be released in the world..

Own All Content

You confirm that your work is accurate and original, is not copied or adapted from content anyone else has written and/or published, does not seek to cause harm, does not release information that might infringe privacy or any other rights of others, and is not subject to any legal restriction such as a nondisclosure agreement.

Editing

We may edit your work. Non-substantive changes (e.g., spelling or punctuation) won't be subject to your approval, but we will give you up to ten days to approve any substantive edits prior to publication of the work. If you don't like the edits, you may suggest other changes or withdraw the work from publication.

Publication

We will try to publish your work quickly but we may take up to a year to publish it. We will notify you of publication. Working on edits to your work does not confirm that we have accepted it for publication. Final acceptance of your work for publication is subject to our sole judgment. You understand that our discussions via email or phone are not a commitment by us to publish your work.

Term/Termination

This grant of rights will continue for as long as your work is published by us. If we fail to publish within one year of your submission date, rights granted here will revert to you automatically and this agreement will terminate.

Fees

There are no fees paid for publication. There is no compensation promised or payable for publication or the transfer of rights.

Agreement

By submitting your work to us you confirm that you have read this agreement, that you understand its terms, and that you agree to all the terms. Submission will carry the full force and intent of a signature by us and by you.
